Completed 600+ hours of coding in a 12-week web development immersive program. This led to attaining key skills to build interactive web applications.

Projects

- Tic-Tac-Dro: A functional tic-tac-toe game that requires players to create an account. Players are able to start a new game, keep track of games, change their password, and sign out of the application. ↗
- Rank It Up: An application that allows users to create players. Once two or more players are created, users are able to face them off against each other in a match. Once a winner is decided, the application will keep record of each player's wins and losses to make a standing table. ↗
- Raindrop: An e-commerce web application that "sells" a variety of products. Users can browse a variety of products across a range of categories including: electronics, clothing, entertainment and more! This whole project was made by a small team of 3. ↗
- Auxilio: An on demand application that connects customers to independent contractors who provide assistance. ↗
